

Summer Reading 2010

We encourage Stonegate students to read all summer long. Summer is a time to read for fun! Reread old favorites or find a new author or series to love. Parents can spend time reading aloud to their children and enjoy stories together, or all of you may enjoy listening to books together. The public library has books, books on tape, books on CD, videotapes, DVD's, and more. Unfortunately, Montgomery County Public Libraries will not have a summer reading program in 2010 due to budget constraints.

Stonegate students can still have fun reading during summer, though. We have made a summer reading recording sheet. Students can write the titles of books they have read on this sheet and turn it in for a prize in August. Students should read at least ten books to get a prize.

Not sure what to read? There are many other summer reading resources you can use. Attached is the summer reading list for the grade your child is entering. Also, students shouldn't hesitate to ask a public library staff member for a recommendation. Parents and students can also go online to find some good book recommendations. Links for resources will be posted on the Stonegate website so that you can locate them easily and use them to find great books!

Happy reading,
