

SHARKBYTES

The PTA Newsletter for the Families of Stonegate Elementary School NOVEMBER 2010

Editor's Note

Thank you to all those who've contributed to Sharkbytes. Please continue to send us your pieces. Write to us about your holiday traditions; tell us about your kids' accomplishments or send in something they've done (a poem, a piece of art, a quote...); share a recipe, craft or exercise idea; ask a question or make a suggestion to the PTA. The deadline for contributions for the next issue is Fri, Dec 3. Email your contributions to Meena Dayak at meena.dayak@gmail.com or send them via backpack mail (Shifra Dayak, Mrs. Simpson's third grade class).

Five Most Important Lessons We Can Teach Our Children

Audra Fladung, Principal

1. INTEGRITY.

Work hard and do the right thing, even when no one is watching.

Teach your children to live with intention and to choose without regret.

2. ADMITTING MISTAKES.

Help your children recognize and admit when they've made bad choices or hurt someone. Emphasize that it's important to apologize and mean it. And teach them to learn from mistakes and to move forward.

3. ACCEPTANCE.

Teach your children to accept others, tolerate differences and celebrate diversity. Encourage them to be sensitive to the special qualities and needs of friends, neighbors and classmates.

4. PERSEVERANCE.

Encourage your children to "stick to it" and to find strategies for success. Teach them to never, ever give up as learning to work through challenges only makes us stronger.

5. APPRECIATION AND RESPECT.

Teach your children to be mindful of their blessings and to honor teachers, family, and friends — those who support and care for them.

Wendy Hewett, PTA President

1. MANNERS.

Something as simple as a please, thank you, or excuse me carries a lot of weight in society. Children with good manners come across as being gracious, an admirable trait.

2. RESPECT.

Our children need to be respectful and show consideration for other's feelings, opinions or property.

3. INDEPENDENCE.

Our children need to be able to speak for themselves and express their own opinions.

4. COMPASSION.

Our children need to have the desire to help someone in need.

5. EMPATHY.

Our children need to recognize and respect the feelings, thoughts, and attitudes of another without passing judgment.

5 Easy Ways YOU Can Help

Stonegate Goes Green

Have you heard about SERT — the School Energy and Recycling Team? The team's official mission is "To minimize MCPS utility costs by advantageous procurement of fuels, controlling and monitoring of energy consumption in facilities, and cost-effective efficiency improvements through retro-commissioning of facilities, and energy-savings projects using capital funding, grants, loans and performance contracting." To put it simply, we help keep our schools green.

At Stonegate, our SERT team is getting energized. We've created SERT Patrols to visit classrooms and collect materials to be recycled. We will be hosting a poster contest, educating classrooms, and continuing to post important information and green tips on the Stonegate Elementary website. Stay tuned and help us stay green.

Jennifer Ficco, SERT Leader

In the October 2010 issue of Sharkbytes (available on the web at http://www.montgomeryschoolsmd.org/schools/stonegatees/2010-2011/PTA/index_PTA.shtm), we introduced the PTA board and committee chairs. While every one of them makes a significant contribution, the real SharkTeam is made up of people like you — every family member of each Stonegate student.

How can you help? Here are 5 easy things you can do:

- 1. Join the PTA: If you haven't already done so, start or renew your PTA membership today.
Contact our membership chair, Cathy Stanton, at catherine_stanton@yahoo.com
- 2. Attend Meetings: PTA meetings are held on the first Tuesday of every month, 7–8 pm at the school. Join us to meet other parents, get important school updates, and express your opinions.
- 3. Volunteer at Lunch and Recess: Stop by at school for an hour on any day and help the kids maintain order and have fun at lunch and recess.
Contact Tammy Forsyth at mdfmommy@yahoo.com to sign up.
- 4. Earn While You Shop: Help the PTA earn cash from your grocery shopping! Register or renew your Safeway Club Card at www.escrip.com by November 1 and designate Stonegate ES PTA (code 6574649). Register your Giant Bonus Card at www.giantfood.com/aplus and designate Stonegate (code 00883) to receive School Rewards. Then every time you shop, simply present your Safeway Club Card or Giant Bonus Card.
Questions? Contact Maqueda Brown maquedabrown@verizon.net
- 5. Send In Your Boxtops: If you buy participating products, cut out the Boxtops and have your child bring them in to class. You may place them in a sandwich bag (include a small slip of paper with your child's name and homeroom) or use the collection sheets.
The November collection sheet is included in this issue of Sharkbytes, see page 8.

THANK YOU from Tamara Strickland and Tawanna Harris for a fun Back to School Picnic. Thank you to the staff, students, and parents who attended, hope you had a blast! Thank you to all those who donated and supported. What a great way to kick off the school year!

THANK YOU from Jeannie Franklin to all who supported Breakfast With Dads. Thank you to the great dads, grandfathers, uncles, big brothers and mentors who came to have breakfast with their Stonegate sharks. Special thanks to our volunteers — Jessica Brauer, Rebecca Flores, Savana Allen, Nicola Staples, Cheryl Watkins, Angela Foster, Angelica Gonzales, Wendy Hewett, Lisa Kroop, Glenn Sabin and the many others who made this a successful event with donations, encouragement, and support. Thank you to Audra Fladung, Carla Glawe, Kim Smith, and all other staff who helped make this morning special for the students! Students and dads, thank you for your great ideas for future events — board game night, pancake dinner fundraiser, and breakfast with moms coordinated by dads.

THANK YOU from DeAndrea Robinson for a memorable Harvest Festival. Many thanks to the parents who volunteered their time and resources to put offer the Harvest Festival alternative to Halloween celebrations — Ivy Cameros, Charilita Muse, Karen Holt, Jennifer Forkkio, Joanna Kim, and others. We couldn't have done it without you and the kids benefited from your generosity.

THANK YOU from Pam Troutman for a successful Fall Book Fair. Thank you to the many, many volunteers who helped and to the parents and kids who shopped. Book Fair sales have contributed significantly to the PTA budget. This year our school collected more than $200 in One for Books, which goes to buy books for our media center and classrooms and nearly $600 in Scholastic Bonus Dollars, which may be used to buy books and other classroom enrichment items for our classes. We look forward to the next Book Fair in early March!

THANK YOU from Tracey Linck Clare Goldfogle, Diane Gload and Shari Delaney for a super Family Fun Night. Thanks to all who came and enjoyed the crafts, snacks, and fun activities. Congratulations to our 50-50 raffle winner, the Hogston Family! A lot of hard work went into making this a special night, thank you to all our volunteers — Lynn Jenner, Rene Amador, Piyanka Warnakulasuriya, Kara Brockmeyer, Tracy McGowan, Karen Coyne, Angela Foster, Tamara Strickland, Alison Crichton, Diana Johnston, Sarah Rollman, Jill Broer, Lisa Kroop, Nicola Staples, Tom Meile, Tracy Meile, Debbie Seabold, Danielle Sodani, Terrence Thomas, Bryan Missig, Paul Brockmeyer, Ted Gload, Kevin Kapfer, Tom Taylor, Tony Strickland, Mike McGinn, Randy Staples, Chris Roux, AND all the fabulous middle and high school volunteers!

Kids Speak

Glowing In The Dark

By Nathan Cho, Kindergarten

Do you see what I have?
I have a glow stick.
It glows in the dark.

Does Samuel have one that glows in the dark?
Yes, he has.
Just like mine.

Does dad have one that
glows in the dark?
Yes, he has.
His watch glows in the dark.

Mom, do you have one that glows in the dark?
Yes, you have.
The love in your heart.
That glows when I feel dark.

Nathan's mom overheard him saying these words and asked dad to write them down just like he said it!

SHARK COUNSEL

Ask Mrs. Berning

What would be the best role for a parent to be when sibling fights happen? A judge or an onlooker?

Sun J. Cho

Mom of Samuel, second grade and Nathan, kindergarten

Mrs. Berning counsels

“Whenever possible, don’t get involved. Step in only if there’s a danger of physical harm. If you always intervene, you risk creating other problems. The kids may start expecting your help and wait for you to come to the rescue rather than learning to work out the problems on their own. There’s also the risk that you — inadvertently — make it appear to one child that another is always being “protected,” which could foster even more resentment. By the same token, rescued kids may feel that they can get away with more because they’re always being “saved” by a parent.

If you’re concerned by the language used or name-calling, it’s appropriate to “coach” kids through what they’re feeling by using appropriate words. This is different from intervening or stepping in and separating the kids. Even then, encourage them to resolve the crisis themselves. If you do step in, try to resolve problems with your kids, not for them.

When getting involved, here are some steps to consider:

- Separate kids until they’re calm. Sometimes it’s best just to give them space for a little while and not immediately rehash the conflict. Otherwise, the fight can escalate again. If you want to make this a learning experience, wait until the emotions have died down.

- Don’t put too much focus on figuring out which child is to blame. It takes two to fight — anyone who is involved is partly responsible.
- Try to set up a “win-win” situation so that each child gains something. When they both want the same toy, perhaps there’s a game they could play together instead.

Remember, as kids cope with disputes, they also learn important skills that will serve them for life — like how to value another person’s perspective, how to compromise and negotiate, and how to control aggressive impulses.

Simple things you can do every day to help kids get along:

- Set ground rules for acceptable behavior.
- Recognize that sometimes one kid needs more than the other.
- Give your kids one-on-one attention directed to their interests and needs.
- Make sure kids have their own space and time to do their own thing — without having to share 50-50.
- Have fun together as a family — since parental attention is something many kids fight over, fun family activities can help reduce conflict.
- If your children frequently squabble over the same things (such as video games or dibs on the TV remote), post a schedule showing which child “owns” that item at what times during the week. But if they keep fighting about it, take the “prize” away altogether.

- If fights between your school-age kids are frequent, hold weekly family meetings in which you repeat the rules about fighting and review past successes in reducing conflicts. Consider establishing a program where the kids earn points toward a fun family-oriented activity when they work together to stop battling.
- Recognize when kids just need time apart from each other and the family dynamics. Try arranging separate play dates or activities for each kid occasionally. And when one child is on a play date, you can spend one-on-one time with another.
- Keep in mind that sometimes kids fight to get a parent’s attention. In that case, consider taking a time-out of your own. When you leave, the incentive for fighting is gone.
- When your own fuse is getting short, consider handing the reins over to the other parent, whose patience may be greater at that moment.

Black-Eyed Susan Readers

Students vote to pick the recipients of the Black-Eyed Susan Award, the Maryland State book award. At Stonegate, our second graders read the nominated books during Media time and vote in April. Fourth and fifth graders must read at least five books out of the ten nominees to be allowed to vote and to come to the pizza party sponsored by the PTA — they meet once or twice a month for lunch in the media center to talk about what they have read so far.

Students who have read Black-Eyed Susan chapter book nominees:
