Writing

Kindergarten students in Mrs. Soriano-Garcia's class are learning to use sight words and environmental print to form sentences. They used the sight words that have been introduced so far as well as the U.S. symbols and colors word banks to write about the U.S. symbols.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

This is America.
It is the country where we live.

This is our flag.
It stands for the United States of America.

This is the Statue of Liberty. It stands for hope and freedom.

This is the bald eagle. It stands for strength and freedom.

This is the Liberty Bell. It stands for freedom too.

I know that meerkats they have pink noses. they have long tails.
They look for food in the morning.

Ms. Carter's first grade students used non-fiction text features to locate information about giraffes. After researching habitat, food, and predators, students learned some "WOW" facts and used a graphic organizer to collect them. Students wrote these facts in complete sentences starting with a topic sentence.

Have you ever done something for the community? I went to the beach to pick up the litter. When I got there you couldn't believe how much trash was there. It took us 30 minutes to clean it up. But lots of people came to help fifteen or ten minutes later. Also, some people only picked up one piece of trash. I felt really sad. But more people came and helped

Community Action: Have you ever done something to help the community?

Name: Nicole

Have you ever helped clean up trash? I have. It was fun. I helped the common good by cleaning litter. I felt happy because I spent my afternoon outside instead of staying inside watching T.V. I knew I was doing the right thing. I would tell others, "I am so happy knowing I helped my community."

Clean up the beach and bath. When I went to clean up the bay and beach I was happy. I was going to help animals that lived in the sea and earth. Picking up trash is very important to us and the earth. If we do not pick up trash our earth will be dirty. I hope we come back to clean up the beach. I wish people will not litter.

Have you ever picked up moldy stinky trash? I have. Read on to find out how I dealt with litter on grass.

Moldy bread, bottles, cans, and trash were on the grass. It was filthy! I got mad at all the people who littered (but I didn't know who they were). Since I wanted to help earth somehow I finally had my big chance! I got a trash bag and started collecting the litter. A few hours later, I finally finished cleaning up all that filthy moldy stuff like bread. Even candy wrappers were everywhere! When I

Writing About Math

Area is how much space a flat surface cover measure in square units. I got the area by counting square units.

We read informational as well as fictional texts about mussels. We watched informational and fictional videos about mussels. We then synthesized this information and wrote about what we had learned. Please enjoy our writings and our pictures.

What I would say is that A important thing about mussels is that they eat with tubes.
One tube suck's up the food and the water it suck's up goes out the other one. The other important thing is that they have something that sticks on things. They can help like if water slashes over them then they won't float off in the water. last is the third important thing is that the mussel's dig into the dirt so they can hide when scared. I think that is important because you should just leave the mussels alone because they mussel's don't like it an neather would you.

Mussels are clever. That's because they can do many things. Some of the things are sinking into mud. That's very important to them because otherwise people, and predators will be able to see the mussels and take them.
Second, you might just see them
as two strings hanging from them
but they are basically two suction cups. These things really help them by staying in place from waves and things that grab them.
They are bivalves, too.

DID YOU EVER WANT TO BE AN EXPLORER LIKE
COLUMBUS? CHECK OUT
WHAT SOME 4TH GRADE
STUDENTS WANT TO EXPLORE!

I would want to explor Africa to see new animal's and go on a safari to see Lion's and tiger's.
I will get the money from my dad by saying I want to tell the king all the thing's I saw I am going to discover animal's and how they live and hunt. I will travel by ship. I will bring food meterial clothes shoes and pants with christopher and steven.

THE MISSING CUPCAKE

Once upon a time my friends Big M, Adrian, Cole and I were walking to the shop. We bought twelve cupcakes. We went outside and when we were done taking the cupcakes home we did not know why. When we went back inside the shop there said the boss took your cupcakes. When we ran out the door the guy said the street number. So we went to his house and we banged on the door
