Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Dr. Vance briefly reported on the budget review groups that recently met for orientation, overview, and discussion. Mr. Bowers added that staff presentation went well and noted that the group was very engaged and interested in that activity.

Dr. Cheung observed that MCPS has become world renown and three Asian groups of educators and government officials were visiting the school system this week.

Mr. Felton commented that on Monday there will be the Million Man March in Washington. When he has been asked if there is an official Board position, he has indicated that the Board views this as other public demonstrations and that it is a personal issue.

Mr. Abrams stated that it was appropriate to have a salute to transportation personnel on the agenda because staff does a marvelous job. Transportation staff is the first contact students have with the school system. He commented on student transportation in new subdivisions on non-dedicated roads. He enumerated a situation where a citizen experienced a great deal of frustration in trying to alter a bus route onto a non-dedicated road. Staff pointed out that there are liability and safety issues. If the Board is talking in terms of making government more responsive to citizens and creating a more business friendly environment in Montgomery County, MCPS needs to do a better job on communicating MCPS policy and practice to citizens.

Mr. Ewing remarked that there is a waiting list of 30 students at one school who are eligible for Head Start. Based on this fact, there are probably a great many other students who are not receiving these services. This is an issue to consider for the next year's budget. Mr. Ewing commended MCCPTA's favorable position on spending affordability and taxes. Mr. Ewing continued that the school system relies on substitutes. In his opinion, Mr. Ewing thought the Board should review substitute training and guidance for substitutes. Mr. Ewing commented on the Montgomery County Hate/Violence Committee and the issues raised affecting the school system including the major issue of the consequences of prejudice.

Mrs. Gordon complimented the staff and superintendent for moving forward with the revised budget process. She expressed appreciation to MCCPTA and local PTAs for their attendance and support at the spending affordability public hearings. Mrs. Gordon and Dr. Vance met with Mr. Duncan and there was a more supportive mood as well as a clear understanding to move forward with funding both at state and local levels for education. Mrs. Gordon was interviewed by the site representative from the National Blue Ribbon Committee at Hoover Middle School and Walter Johnson High School. That experience was exciting and illustrates how well schools are doing.

Ms. Gutierrez commented that she visited the Rockinghorse facility and observed the excellent concentration of services. She had a concern that the facility is isolated, has limited access to computerization, and is overcrowded. She congratulated the organizers of the Hispanic Alliance and MCPS on preparing the Fourth Annual Financial Aid Conference to be held on November 5 and 19. There will also be additional sessions to explain to parents PSATs, SATs, and the courses required.

Mrs. King observed that during a tour of the Sherwood cluster, she was amazed at the huge areas designated for future development.
Eric Schwartz, Esq. of the Legal Services Association presented the Board with copies of the Legal Primer. Mr. Schwartz pointed out that the primer was written by non-attorneys for non-attorneys and has 10 chapters with a detailed index. He added that the primer is expandable and yearly updates will be supplied.

Ms. Gutierrez assumed the chair.

(13) Upon taking action on a boundary proposal, the Board has the discretion to adopt minor modifications to the superintendent's recommendation or Board-adopted alternatives if it has been determined by a majority of the Board that this action will not have a significant impact on a plan that has received public review."

RESOLUTION NO. 677-95 Re: AN AMENDMENT LONG-RANGE EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES PLANNING POLICY

Resolved, That paragraph (11) be amended to add the following sentence: Any modification that impacts any or all of a school community that has not previously been included in the superintendent's recommendation should be considered a significant modification.

RESOLUTION NO. 678-95 Re: AN AMENDMENT LONG-RANGE EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES PLANNING POLICY

To the greatest extent possible, alternatives will not be considered after the Board of Education alternatives worksession without adequate notification and opportunity for comment to the affected communities.

Mrs. Gordon assumed the chair.

Re: UPDATE ON MARYLAND STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION'S PROPOSED HIGH SCHOOL ASSESSMENT PROGRAM

Dr. Vance invited the following staff to the table: Dr. Mary Helen Smith, acting associate superintendent for the Office of Instruction and Program Development; Dr. Marlene Hartzman, acting director of the Department of Education Accountability; Ms. Joy Odom, assessment development coordinator; Ms. Elizabeth Boone, principal of Sherwood High School; and Mr. Jay Headman, principal of Winston Churchill High School. The white paper provided to the Board was an update on the state's proposed high school program, implications, feedback, and three recommendations.

Dr. Smith gave a brief history and stated that in the 1980s assessment was based on the California Achievement Tests (CAT). At that time, functional tests examined high school students for basic skills. In the 1990s, the state and MCPS looked at student performance and that is the context in which high school assessments are being discussed.

Dr. Hartzman reported that staff is in the process of making sure high school teachers are aware of the state's proposal. Staff has convened a special senior high subcommittee on Assessment Design and Implementation to look at the core learning goals.
Ms. Odom reported that in June of 1994 the state convened a task force on high school assessment. There are two charges to the task force: (1) coordinate the work of the five teams and make final recommendations on these content goals and (2) make recommendations on the assessment structure. The assumption was that the content be rigorous and attached to a high school graduation diploma. The content areas are math, science, social studies, and English and are designed to correlate with the Carnegie Unit descriptions from the state. There was a fifth content area of skills for success which includes goals on learning, thinking, communication, technology, and interpersonal skills. The goals are imbedded in the other four assessment pieces. Staff is obtaining recommendations from all educators on each of the four learning goals and that information is due December 15, 1995.

Ms. Odom stated that a recommendation was that assessments be end of course rather than at the end of the program of studies. Another recommendation is to move away from a constant retaking of the test if a student was not proficient and move into local alternative assessments approved by the state as another way of obtaining proficiency levels.

Ms. Boone observed that the state assessment cannot and should not measure everything that is considered important. The assessment program must communicate that tests are not the focal point of high schools. The MCPS high school curriculum is extensive and rigorous, well developed, tested to meet community demands, and for students to excel in the post secondary world. What needs to be assured as MCPS moves into the state high school assessment program, is that the program will not force MCPS to change or will not drive the MCPS curriculum into something that meets the needs of the assessment program rather than the needs of students.

Mr. Headman shared that it is critical that there is a partnership. The task force recommended that the state mandated end of the course assessments be constructed of state test modules that can be assembled in various configurations to adapt to local curricula while simultaneously assuring uniform standards. MCPS has a final examine schedule for January and June. He questioned how this would fit into the schedule and how it would work. He observed that the state assessment may or may not match MCPS content or fit into existing structure without having to add a battery of tests. Administrators welcome the recommendations and the idea of flexibility is essential.

Mrs. Gordon commented that this discussion was extremely important, and she was dismayed that boards across the state have not been given the same opportunity to comment as had every high school teacher and principal. If the high school assessment program is a partnership between the state and local board, it should be noted that there is a large impact on local policies and boards will need to take a leadership role.

Mr. Abrams was curious about how the state views MCPS assessments because, if local assessments comply with the state's objectives, why not look at a local option. The objective is assessment and accountability and where that is in place Mr. Abrams was concerned about redundancy or uniformity. Ms. Odom stated that flexibility will be a local and state piece.

Mr. Abrams was concerned about two levels if, in fact, the knowledge is being assessed. There ought to be a mechanism or discretion of the state in evaluating local assessments. He was concerned about the amount of testing in the schools that takes students away from learning. Dr. Smith responded that at one point the state had several paradigms for the assessments and local assessments that met certain standards or criteria. Now, staff is looking at the core learning goals and the notion of at least part of the examination being a state examination.

Mr. Abrams stated that, if there are modules that are deemed to be less than sufficient, it merits a state program but that threshold must be crossed first. If the state fails to cross that threshold, Mr. Abrams raised a question as to why the state wished to impose its views on the system.

Ms. Gutierrez remarked that assessment is a key issue for MCPS. The Research and Evaluation Committee had an in-depth review of the current proposal. There are all types of impacts on the system that have been raised as well as the need to ensure that there is an opportunity to respond as a Board. If this proposal is to be effective in MCPS, it has to be through a partnership and the leadership of the Board is essential. The proposals have many key issues of responsibilities between local and state and has long-term implications and the Board must understand them fully. The Board should be open for the review and accountability that will be required. Ms. Gutierrez totally agreed with the recommendation that the state should look at its role of evaluating the local assessments. Ms. Gutierrez stressed that this proposal is very serious and the Board needs to take a position.

Mr. Felton shared the concerns of the other Board members. He reiterated that the Board had not been involved. Mr. Felton was bothered not only by the funding implications, but the approach which appears to assume little or no assessment on the part of local boards. The issue is what is the criteria that must be met and how can local systems meet that criteria. There is no addressing of validation as it affects children throughout the state. Who is liable if there are problems? There are many issues that need to be addressed.
Mr. Ewing remarked that as usual when the state takes a leadership role it tends to focus on jurisdictions other than Montgomery County. The objective of the proposal of high school assessments needs support based on a high level of performance with uniform standards. The public senses that students come out of the public schools with a wide variety of information and skills and there should be uniform assessments. The Board needs to figure out a way to join the state in a partnership without dismantling MCPS assessments. The Board should have input whether invited or not and schedule a meeting for action on the issues. The Research and Evaluation Committee can make recommendations in order for the Board to make a decision.

Dr. Cheung agreed with the other Board members as to their comments and concerns. He supported the goals and objectives for high performance of public school students. He was concerned about the attitude at the state level with making regulations with little understanding on how it will be locally implemented and managed. He was also concerned about new high school assessments affecting policy issues, resources both long-term and short-term, curriculum, and testing. He hoped that the state has strategic planning as well as overall goals for the assessment Maryland students.

Mrs. King pointed out that it is MCPS' responsibility to provide every opportunity for success for every student as not all graduates are college material. The Board needs to make sure that each graduate is prepared for the workplace or college. The Board should not assume that every student that graduates from high school will go to college.

Mrs. Gordon summarized that the Board wanted to be active participants as the proposal moves forward. No one wants to negate the need to have high academic standards for all students and move beyond the functional level for students receiving a state diploma. She supports the intent of the proposal. In the development of the assessment, it was her understanding that the state is looking at outside companies developing tests. She was concerned that the state wants a partnership and involve local school systems but then bid out the development of the assessments. There has been a discussion about the new assessments replacing the functional test. She was also concerned about the timing for implementation of the proposal. She thought it was an outstanding idea for the Research and Evaluation Committee to spearhead recommendations, develop a statement in support of the intent, and raise questions of implementation.

Re: ROLE OF MEDIA SPECIALISTS

Dr. Vance invited the following staff to the table: Dr. Mary Helen Smith, acting associate superintendent for the Office of Instruction and Program Development; Mr. Jack Schoendorfer, acting director of the Department of Student, Community and Staff Support; and Roberta Haines, director of the Division of School Library Media Programs.

Dr. Smith pointed out that in the memorandum presented to the Board the roles of the media specialists, media assistants, and media service technicians were spelled out.

Ms. Haines stated that media specialists act as information specialists, teach and guide students, and assure equitable access to technology. The media assistants have responsibilities for routine tasks including clerical, processing, and circulation using technology. At the high school level, the media service technicians' roles includes working with TV programs and computers.

Mr. Schoendorfer pointed out that the white paper includes examples of how reductions in media specialist positions have affected the school program. There have been less classes taught by media specialists, less opportunities for access to information and research expertise, and less time for media specialists to plan and consult with teachers as technology is integrated into the curriculum.

Mrs. Gordon remarked that the Board has received a great deal of input and the white paper provided valuable information about the changing roles of media center personnel.

Ms. Gutierrez commented that this issue came before the Board because the Board reduced ten media specialists out of 188.5 positions. The ten media specialist positions were replaced by ten media assistant positions. In putting the information in quantitative terms, she did not understand why some principals were not able to implement the global access initiative. She agreed that these are important functions within the school system that support the global access but needed to know the recommended staffing level of these positions in order to deliver the service. Ms. Harris responded that the current basis for media staffing is student population.

Mr. Felton remarked that the paper was useful but shared Ms. Gutierrez's concerns. The Board appreciates the media specialists' contributions to the school system. The issue before the Board is funding and the most efficient use of those resources. Ms. Harris replied that in addition to the instructional role of the media specialist there is print material and facility management, giving students several sources of information, and background in information resources. Students are taught how to access, evaluate and analyze, and use information.

Dr. Cheung pointed out that the white paper reinforces the expanding role of the media specialists in our information society and the use of that information. The technology hardware and software can help improve efficiency but it generates new information and knowledge that requires extra resources. The key is how MCPS uses this information to improve the performance and learning of students.

Mr. Ewing commented that the white paper was useful and it is clear that there is a knowledge explosion that is available to more schools and students. It is evident that the Board made a mistake by reducing media specialist positions last spring. Mr. Ewing requested information from the superintendent and the resources necessary to restore the standards prior to position reductions. He asked media specialists to provide the Board with professional standards for media specialists.

Mrs. Gordon indicated that this discussion was helpful as the role of media personnel has changed. The issue may go back to the training received by media specialists prior to the technology explosion. Since the role has changed, what are the job qualifications and job requirements that will enable the media team to carry out the new responsibilities. The Maryland Fact Book for 1994-95 lists Montgomery County as having more positions than other jurisdictions in this category. She would like comparisons with other school systems in staffing, the role of the media specialist in the state, Fairfax, and other comparable districts. She would like to know what are the hours that media centers are open in high schools; information on how classes are scheduled in six or eight representative high schools within the county last year and this year; and the number of media specialists, media assistants, and media service technicians that MCPS currently employs and what staff plans for the future.

* Ms. Gutierrez assumed the chair.
