Re: BOARD/SUPERINTENDENT COMMENTS

Mr. Xie announced the successful legislation expanding the student member of the Board's (SMOB) voting rights, including the budget, boundary changes, and other issues. He thanked the past SMOBs and MCR/MCJC teams.

Dr. Docca attended the MABE Black Caucus in Baltimore County with Dr. Lisa Williams, presenter. The PowerPoint will be sent to other members of the staff. There are many programs to increase academic achievement of African-American males, and AVID is in every high school. Dr. Docca also attended the dinner/dance sponsored by Jack and Jill, Inc. of American. This organization provides cultural, academic, and etiquette for students. Mr. Barclay's daughter, Charrah, attended the affair. Students worked hard to raise funds for scholarships, leadership activities, culture activities, and practice their dancing.

Mr. Barclay congratulated Dr. Lacey for receiving an award for leadership. Also, his family has been a member of Jack and Jill for many years. MCPS staff is committed to the growth of our young people, and he thought it was critical to attack a problem that is identified to find the best ways to support African-American males. Dr. Williams' presentation was helpful to recognize what they have done to organize the system for the benefit all children. There is a crisis for young men around the nation, and they need to graduate from high school to be productive citizens.

Ms. Brandman congratulated Dr. Docca for her leadership for boards to share best practices around the state. She and Mr. Durso attended the African-American history presentation at Walt Whitman High School. It was very well done.

Dr. Starr commented on Spring Forum on Gifted Education, Young Professionals Conference, Riderwood Retirement Community Scholarships, and the Student Town Hall.

Re: ALTERNATIVE GOVERNANCE:
RESTRUCTURING PLANS FOR FOREST
OAK AND NEELSVILLE MIDDLE SCHOOLS

Dr. Starr invited the following people to the table: Dr. Darryl L. Williams, community superintendent for the Damascus, Gaithersburg, Col. Zadok Magruder, and Watkins Mill clusters; Dr. Kathy L. Brake, director of school performance for the Damascus, Gaithersburg, Col. Zadok Magruder, and Watkins Mill clusters; Mrs. L. Victoria Lake-Parcan, principal, Neelsville Middle School, and Mr. Arthur Williams, principal, Forest Oak Middle School.

Under the federal No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (NCLB), schools in Year 4 of improvement must develop two-year alternative governance plans to address student and teacher needs. Both Forest Oak and Neelsville middle schools currently are in the process of finalizing plans to meet this mandate. In accordance with this requirement, the alternative governance plans for Forest Oak and Neelsville middle schools for school years 2013 and 2014 will be submitted to the Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE) in April 2012 for feedback. Dr. Starr will then present the plans to the Maryland State Board of Education (State Board) on May 22, 2012. Both plans are predicated upon the concept that by bringing a clearer, sharper focus to teaching and learning within the schools, student performance will improve. It was imperative to develop plans that were respectful of each school community's unique story and were built upon their strengths. Delineated below is an overview of the development of the alternative governance plans and an update on the continuous improvement efforts in both schools based on the collaboration of stakeholders from central services, school staff, and the school community.

When a school does not make Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) for four consecutive years or advances to Year 4 of school improvement, then restructuring requires a major reorganization of a school's governance structure. In particular, it means implementing fundamental reforms to improve student academic achievement and it requires carrying out significantly more rigorous and comprehensive strategies than undertaken as part of corrective action. These reforms and action plans are stated in the Alternative Governance for School Improvement Proposal (AG Proposal). Restructuring also requires that the reasons why the school continues not to make AYP are addressed, thereby facilitating an exit from school improvement as soon as possible. In order to accomplish this, MSDE allows school systems to select from the following three alternative governance options:

- Option 1: Replace all or most school staff, including the principal, related to the school's failure to make AYP.
- Option 2: Contract with a private management company to operate the school.
- Option 3: Reopen the school as a public charter school.

Montgomery County Public Schools (MCPS) chose Option 1 and established the Alternative Governance Board (AGB) to design the implementation of this path. The principals at both Forest Oak and Neelsville middle schools were given an option to re-interview for their positions and both principals declined. On July 25, 2011, the new principal leadership was appointed by the Board of Education.

Forest Oak middle school's history of performance on the MSAs has had both challenges and successes. In 2011, Forest Oak Middle School did not make AYP in mathematics and reading, and MSDE placed the school in restructuring planning. Because Forest Oak Middle School did not make AYP in mathematics, reading, and attendance (special education), Forest Oak Middle School advanced to restructuring planning as a "priority focused needs school." The term "priority focused needs school" means that a school has not achieved the Annual Measureable Objectives (AMO) in one or two subgroups in the same reported area. MCPS was notified of this AYP status in late June 2011 and thus began the work of the AGB to prepare for the restructuring planning.

The school leadership and members of the ASC conducted a root cause analysis of student performance by participating in classroom observations, data analysis, and walkthroughs. Based on the root cause analysis, school leadership created a professional development plan that is aligned to all components of the school improvement plan and is designed to develop the capacity of the instructional staff in the following areas: academic content focused vocabulary, higher-order questioning, academic discourse, equitable practices, co-teaching for differentiation of instruction, and use of technology to monitor student progress and integrate instructional technology to support learning.

As indicated in the February 9, 2012, memorandum to the Board of Education, there are key components of the AG Proposal. The school leadership team will have additional summer days to build their capacity as instructional leaders, and instructional staff will have additional preservice days to support the implementation of the professional development plan. The school administration and leadership team will deliver a comprehensive professional development plan for the entire instructional staff during preservice week and throughout the school year. Lastly, the master schedule will provide professional development during common team and department time, and the ILT will provide and monitor resources for Cohort Collaborative Work beyond the regular workday. Forest Oak Middle School also will participate in the Advancement Via Individual Determination (AVID) Program. The school leadership will work with central services staff and community leaders to increase extended learning opportunities for students after school and during the summer, and will offer Information and Technology Grade 6, with consideration to expanding the entire Information and Technology pathway as well as the Lights, Camera, Literacy! sequence of courses.

Similar to Forest Oak Middle School, Neelsville Middle School's history of performance on the MSAs is one of both challenges and successes. At the end of the 2010–2011 school year, Neelsville Middle School did not make AYP in mathematics and reading, thus placing the school in restructuring planning. Because Neelsville Middle School did not make AYP in all subgroups for mathematics and the Free and Reduced-price Meals System, Limited English Proficient, and special education subgroups in reading, Neelsville Middle School advanced to restructuring planning as a "priority comprehensive needs school." Comprehensive Needs Pathway is a pathway for a school with a wider pattern of student subgroup failures. Typically, these schools will have failed to meet the AMOs for either reading or mathematics for the All Students group and/or will have failed to achieve AMOs for three or more subgroups in either reading or mathematics. MCPS was notified of this AYP status in late June 2011 and thus began coordinating the work of the many offices involved in preparing for the restructuring planning.

The school leadership team conducted a root cause analysis of the student performance by conducting surveys and interviews of various stakeholders and participating in classroom observations, data analysis, and walkthroughs. Based on the root cause analysis, the school leadership team created a professional development plan that is aligned with all components of the school improvement plan and is designed to develop the capacity of the instructional staff in the following areas: rigorous instruction; race and equity; collaboration; and adolescent learner, including brain research, academic identity, and engagement.

Re: DISCUSSION

The Board members asked the following questions and staff responded with answers:

- Was there a conversation with the students of the schools?
- What were the conversations with staff based on Option 1?
- What is the cost and staffing commitment for extra staff at the two schools?
- What is the cost and staffing for an eight-period day?
- What is the commitment for staff that chooses to remain at the school?
- What does it mean that Maryland has applied for an NCLB waiver?
- Are there other schools in corrective action?
