YOUR ROLE AS A GROUP LEADER

ON TOUR

The success and overall enjoyment of the tour is in the hands of your Prométour Tour Director (guide) and you as Group Leader. We strongly believe that the greater the communication and interaction you have with your Prométour Tour Director, the smoother the tour will run.

As Group Leader, you already provide supervision and counseling to your participants, whether they are students, family or adults. You achieve this by assuming basic responsibility for the following: preparing the group for the trip, providing supervision, educational leadership and discipline on the trip, and handling emergency situations.

SETTING THE TONE

Our priority is to take care of every single detail to make your trip a success. Your role is to supervise behavior, ensure the well-being of participants and set an example for the group. That means giving your participants daily cues on how to react to their new environment and learn from it.

Although frustrating experiences sometimes occur while traveling, they need not prevent your group members from having the time of their lives. By putting a positive spin on things and meeting frustration with humor, you can turn minor delays and mishaps into unforgettable experiences.

DISCIPLINE

This is a school trip and school rules apply. Discipline is not the Prométour Tour Director's job. You are the disciplinarian for your participants. Your Prométour Tour Director will report any infractions to you and will intervene in case of an emergency. However, as Group Leader, you are the one directly responsible for your group.

Most importantly, enjoy the adventure!
